FRANCES ISER
MRS. WELLINGTON
SMITH

A central rectangular card with a red border. It features a black and white portrait of a young woman with curly hair. To the right of the portrait is the year "'31". Below the portrait, the name "FRANCES ISER" is written in large, bold, red capital letters. Below that, "MRS. WELLINGTON" is written in red capital letters, and "SMITH" is written in red capital letters at the bottom.

May the realization of these

our dreams

for a greater

Austin High

be an inspiration

to still greater goals,

rich in achievement.

*Close on the bright horizon
The towers of living loom;
Deep in the longing spirits
The blossoms of courage bloom;
High over eyes so pleading
The symbol of Freedom keeps
Vigil, calm and eternal,
Above grim, challenging deeps.*

*Through the gates of the waiting world
The eager youth must go,
Lonely, wondering, hoping,
Safe in the beacon glow,
Strong from the ship that bears them
Gallantly through the years,
Teaching them strength and endurance
To banish the lingering fears.*

Alice Clark.

TO THE WEST FLEEING

that in years to come will harbor the joys, sorrows, trials and triumphs of those who will 'enter to learn' and later 'go forth to serve.'

WE DEDICATE THEM TO

MAROON AND WHITE

Since time immemorial there have been those who have given their lives in service in an effort to further education. Some are acknowledged by the world for their noteworthy achievements — others are not as widely acclaimed for their accomplishments although their influence may be, in reality, just as poignant and far-reaching.

Would we not give full credit to those to whom it is due?

Let it be that the students of Austin may always appreciate these, the efforts of each teacher.

THE ISLAND OF THE

MR. WRIGHT Principal

Austin High School

To the Classes of 1930½ and 1931:

The work of the builders is finished. Our Austin Senior High School stands as a monument to faith in youth. As you go forth from our city of the Austin High School, we trust that you will play your part, inspired by Austin ideals, in building a still greater Chicago

 1920-1921

As history has come down through the years, nations have become known to us partly because of the undying accomplishments of their own civilization, such as the sculpture of the Greeks, the skilled craftsmanship of the Swiss, and the engineering ability of the Egyptians.

This modern American aviatrix has already chosen her path in life; so may each of you go forth to that which is ahead of you and create for your country something that is beautiful as well as lasting.

What It Meant To Them

HAVING completed four years at this establishment, it seems rawthah fitting to say that the bally old place almost seems like home.

SAM BARTON.

NOT one knows the school was many happy days spent at Austin, the enjoyment of high school days must pass unrealized.

LILLIAN BERLING.

SWIMMING was my specialty.

WILBUR CHRISTIANS.

THINKING of my graduation makes me realize that a big piece is being taken out of my life leaving nothing but a delightful memory.

CAROLYN DIETZ.

IT is with feelings of sadness and satisfaction that I leave Austin. For it has given in these last few years my work, my play, and my companions.

JERRY CLOUD.

WHAT I most missed when I left seems to be a bright school of my life. I realize the enjoyable and valuable time spent in high school.

AL GOODMAN.

HAPPY years—now only a part of a beautiful memory.

CARL MEYER.

I HAVE spent my years at Austin in toil, worry, and fun and liked it all.

HOWARD JOHNSTON.

GREAT Scott!! How kin a fella tell. Heck, if I did know, I wouldn't put it down on paper, anahoo.

BOB KASKA.

HAVE had the most enjoyable and valuable four years of my life. I realize the enjoyable and valuable time spent in high school.

ABEL VAN ECK.

SCHOOL days at Austin have acquainted me with an enormous variety of personalities of both teachers and students, for which I am grateful.

ISMENE PAPAGEORGE.

COGITATING upon my four years at Austin, I unearth many fond memories of work and play made more interesting by the many friends I found and teachers I have known.

LAURA SHER.

HARDLY being able to express my sentiment in mere words. I leave it to my classmates to understand what it all means to me.

HATTIE LEPAVSKY.

Come Journalism and The Austin Times have meant more to me than anything else.

BETTY MYERS.

COME even as president of my class, I found the interesting part of my career. I'm sorry I did not start earlier in the social work but I enjoyed it all.

NICHOLAS ZEPF.

LIFE at Austin will hold for me
Many a happy memory.

Of tasks accomplished, and friendships won
Of earnest endeavor and days of fun.

Austin's 1931 Version of the Alphabet

Last Will of the Class of 1930½

We, the graduating class of nineteen hundred thirty and one-half, being of sound mind and in full possession of our faculties, also under no coercion but feeling imminent a change in our lives, do feel necessitated to leave to posterity our many gifts and accomplishments.

Whereas, we make this, our last will and testament and do bequeath:

To Mr. Wright, our principal, the joy of once again rounding the new semester and breaking in the frosh.

To Miss Deaton, dean of girls, the necessity for changing ideas on modern female dress at each Mothers' and Daughters' Tea.

To Mr. Tiernan, we leave the glibness of tongue that qualifies him as Walter Winchell's successor, and that no amount of indifference on our part could rust.

To Mr. Harris, a Van Heusen soft (accent on the soft) collar.

To the class of '31, the honor of holding their commencement exercises in the new Senior High, to which we and many other classes looked forward.

To Aubrey Cookman, Nick Zepp's good nature, second to none, and his executiveness of no mean degree.

To Lorry Marshall, Jerry Cloud's technique with the cartoonist's pencil.

To the next L'Allegro conductor, Howie Miller's "Savoirfaire" that is part of each Columnist.

To Eleanor Herrington, Edith Magnuson's refusal to become piqued or otherwise disagreeable.

To all aspiring columnists, Carolyn Dietz's original coined words and expressions.

To Josephine Puntschart from Jean Rogers, the lines Miss Glynn cut.

To Grace Pettersen, Ismene Papageorge's privilege of playing last minute accompaniments at club meetings.

To someone that needs it, Sam Barton's naiveté.

To Bob Nelson, manuscripts of the leading Shakespearean roles.

To Wilbur Wais, Bill Krieger's "Your-the-only-girl-in-the-world-for-me" look.

To Alice Cox, Laura Leppla's soigné distinction.

To a quiet, retiring soul, Ford Clark leaves his buoyant deviltry.

To Ruth Cureton, Lillian Berling's irrepressible giggle.

To Charles Hill, the class wills a real boat and aeroplane so that he will not feel the urge to draw them during class periods.

To Bob Bryant, Bob Kaska leaves the position of "jack-of-all-trades," better known as C. I. C. president.

To an unnoticed young lady, Laura Sher leaves the famous Sher neckline.

To Mildred Simpson, Sara Shapiro leaves her charm.

To hard working water boys seeking promotion, Rene Koch leaves hopes of becoming captain of the football team.

To Art Kassay, Glenn Liebhart leaves an assorted collection of sweaters and lumberjackets.

To Eleanor Lee, Frances Raeder's sweetness.

To Eunice Wais, Helen Crowley's débutante appearance.

The basic principle of these activities—to extend the classroom subject in a lighter and more enjoyable atmosphere—has been gradually developing, due to the combined efforts of the administration and of the student body.

To the administration of both the past and the present is extended a vote of appreciation for the primary development of extra-curricular activities. For it was during the first years of the school's phenomenal growth that this need rose like a great tide and was met with approval and encouragement on their part.

H. P. DUNN

SEPTEMBER

Tuesday 2—Well, here we are back to our duty. However, it doesn't happen to be much of a duty today because of the absence of classes. Perhaps it is just as well that there are none, so that we will have time to appreciate the newness of the new building before we become so seriously engrossed in our work that we will not have eyes for anything but our studies. Is there any danger of that happening? Now ask!

Wednesday 3—Behold! lo in the West (building) splendid seniors lost (identical with disease contracted by freshies in the East [building])—lost. I say along sixteen lockerless corridors in the mirage of unnumbered rooms some on a really existing fourth floor. Remember this event, my classmates, and hand it down to posterity.

Friday 5—Mr. Berens begins to unfold to the would-be reporters all the deep mysteries of journalism and of the life of a cub.

Friday 12—Here comes the Times. Cubs elated at seeing work "in print" and they say they are going to do even better!

Tuesday 16—Our fond (?) farewell to Messrs. Portables. Hi there, Mr. Track! Glad to see you again. We'll like you more in your new capacity as an out-door track for our poor shut-in trackmen than when you were the scene of our "port" classes.

Wednesday 17—When Esther was asked what she liked best about the new school she replied (after actually thinking for a moment), "The verdant green of the campus." Not yet but soon, Essie.

Friday 19—Times adds to ever-present cry of "Buy your season pass book!!! One has rare ability to be able to dodge those insistent young football player-salesmen. "Buy your season pass book." "Buy your, etc."

Monday 22—Dialogue in Journalism class:

Mr. Berens: I'd like someone to take the R. O. T. C. news this week.

Stude: I will. I belong to the army.

Mr. Berens: That's too bad.

Wednesday 24—I guess we never will be able to stop talking about those husky Ringmen. Marge heaves a sigh while gazing enrapt at the manly physique of Joe Kerrigan. Others have gone through the same thing. Marge: See you all at the game Saturday.

Thursday 25—Captain Jenks: "During first-aid drill, the question, 'Why can't a tourniquet be used on a man's neck?' was put to a rookie."

"After momentous consideration came the reply: 'His chin and shoulders are in the way, sir.'"

Saturday 27—In spite of the valiant efforts of our boys, Oak Park's eleven produces a 14-0 score against them. Better luck next time!

OCTOBER

Friday 3—Howie announces asterisk method of testing L'Allegro contris—and just try to crash!

Tuesday 7—Class of 1932 makes George Bowler, 309, president; Catherine Rose, 306, vice-president; Lucille Verschuur, 306, secretary; Robert Matthews, 319, treasurer; and Richard Johnson, 319, sergeant-at-arms.

Wednesday 8—Aubrey Cookman, 411, elected president of class of 1931; Milton Rosenfeld, 407, vice-president; Eleanor Herrington, 411, secretary; Jane Orndoff, 412, treasurer; and Ray Blum, 408, sergeant-at-arms.

Wednesday 15—Dr. B. L. Ullman, Latin professor from University of Chicago, inspires students with tribute to Virgil in celebration of his 200th birthday.

Tuesday 21—Mr. Tiernan (to unmanageable stude): Tomato, get out of this class and never come back!

Mr. Tiernan (again): I suppose you might call him a canned tomato now.

Thursday 23—Order thy pins and rings now all ye of ye goode classe of 1931. (Wish our report cards were a little more Olde English).

Friday 24—Now that we know the requirements in connection with Hello Day, let's get busy and find a costume, but—wait a minute—why wait until next Friday to say "Hello"?

Friday 31—Hello! Hello! Hello! and to such strangely adorned people! But ask—are they truly Americans underneath those diverse external appearances? AB-SA-TOOT-LY!!!

Why really most of the civilized countries of this globe are represented in the native costume at least.

NOVEMBER

Monday 3—Wet Paint—Sniff! Sniff! Do you smell it? Fresh varnish and paint are really harmful to one's clothing, so we must learn to be more cautious, because the finishing touches have to be applied.

Wednesday 5—Farewell to former book nook in East building where candy stands shall henceforth reign. Enter new quarters of the library in the West building. Bring on your outside reports, history teachers, we're just aching to spend some periods in this beautiful new room.

Monday 10—Neat Pete requests mirrors for the boys. Now, I ask you, which is the vainer sex? Oh, you've changed your mind?

Saturday 15—Austin's leading journalists attend the Greater Press Guild meeting at Wieboldt Hall.

Friday 21—Times Sport staff places Zepp, Goodman, and Bolas on the first all-section team.

Monday 24—Bundle Drive sponsored by "Y" club. Many poor people will be more comfortable now, thanks to the responsiveness of the student body.

Social of class of 1931 at Town Hall.

Wednesday 26—A warning as to the amount of turkey you eat might come in handy, but it would be in all probability unheeded. Just the same, hope you have a nice Thanksgiving.

DECEMBER

Wednesday 3—Dr. Preston Bradley of the People's Church talks to an assemblage of students, thrilling them with tales of his childhood and firing many with ambition.

Friday 5—Times wins Distinguished Rating in the first class of Illinois high school papers.

Monday 8—Do your Christmas shopping and mailing early. Nuff said.

Tuesday 9—Bobby solemnly states, much to our surprise, that "You can't get a divorce in a basketball court" and "You can't swim the paralytic stroke." It certainly is strange how one benefits from associating with the intellectuals.

Wednesday 10—Did you buy a bandana to put in your Christmas box? If not, why not?

Friday 12—Little Theatre gives "The Royal Family" and was it ever good!

Monday 15—Mothers and Daughters Conference of class of 1930 is held in the Civic room. Graduating girls present program and girls of 1931 serve punch.

Tuesday 16—Sleuth discovers that many of the fairer sex of Austin are helping to relieve Christmas congestion by offering their services at the department stores.

Wednesday 17—Approximately 3000 Christmas boxes filled by we students to send to those dear old men out at Oak Forest. We hope they like them (due apology to Ben Bernie).

Friday 19—May Santa fill your stocking full of the goodiest goodies. Until next year, goodbye. Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

JANUARY

Monday 5—"B-z-z-z— what did you get from Santa Claus?"

"Oh you don't mean it! Isn't that too darling for words!" "Of course I wanted a roadster but I'm satisfied."

Don't forget this is 1931.

Friday 9—Charity social given by Latin club in girls gym. Good music and a good time.

Wednesday 14—Ferry Marshall and Bob Bryant are C. I. C. presidents with Georgene O'Donnell and Harvey Sheppard vice presidents. Virginia Sauer and Bob Lumby secretaries and Jean Watters and Woody Weaver treasurers, to complete the officary body.

Tuesday 23—Band Concert in Auditorium. Shindig at Central Plaza for those who crashed L'Allegro.

Monday 26—Have you been down to the office to buy your hand book yet? Certainly surprising some of the things that are in them that we have never before known about.

Wednesday 28—Class of 1930½ ushers in first Class Day which proves to be a huge success including luncheon, program and dancing.

Thursday 29—Graduates and their partners sway to the music of Duke Pepper and his Northwestern Troubadours at the Nineteenth Century Club.

Friday 30—Commencement exercises held in East auditorium under charge of William Krieger and committee. And now they're all alumni. Success to every one of them!

FEBRUARY

Monday 2—New period system installed with lunch periods arranged so that one-fourth of the school is at lunch while one-fourth is at section and the other half in classes.

Friday 6—"Have you got you're program straightened out?" Better hurry or you'll not be able to get into classes.

Thursday 12—No school in honor of the Great Emancipator Abraham Lincoln.

Friday 13—Social by class of 1931 in girl's gym. Music furnished by Kabars Exponents of Aristocratic Jazz. Aubrey Cookman predicts a good time to become acquainted with other classmates.

Monday 16—Herbert Robertshaw is made chairman of the non-smoking committee. Karl Rosen appointed head of the bulletin board committee.

Thursday 19—Discovery is made that our faculty has been increased to the extent of two hundred and seventeen teachers.

Monday 23—No school because yesterday was George Washington's birthday.

Tuesday 24—Mr. Steffens to Sweet Young Thing: "What do you mean, using the boy's entrance? Can't you read, Boys Only?"

S. Y. T.: "But Mr. Steffens, I came in the Only door."

Saturday 28—Hate to have been born on the 29 of February wouldn't you?

MARCH

Tuesday 3—Bernice Brekke wins $250.00 in breach of promise suit against Atwood Weaver. All that can be said is, "Try to collect."

Thursday 5—Sleuth calls pin Soldier "because it's been on so many fronts." Tch!

Friday 6—Jane Orndoff announces popularity contest which is to be conducted in a new, and, it is hoped, better way.

Monday 10—Students in Mr. Bollinger's Sociology classes get an extra outburst of amusing stories. When bigger and better stories are told, Mr. Bollinger will tell them.

Friday 13—Irving Weiss appointed city Brigade Colonel of the R. O. T. C. Arthur Frohman receives commission of Major at the same time. Art and Irv are next-door neighbors. Coincidence, n'est-ce pas?

Wednesday 18—Results of popularity contest announced and are too numerous to mention. Some of the contestants' pictures will be in the Times Friday.

Friday 20—Essie and Edie at the Arcade learning a speech. They should be among the Famous People in History. That two such nobles of their tender age should sacrifice their lunch period to learn a speech is, indeed, a touching situation. (It won't happen again or I miss my guess.)

Tuesday 24—Miss Lloyd gets Pickle pins for opera club members from the Heinz Pickle Company. Originality plus.

Friday 27—P. T. A. gathers all possible talent from grammar schools to display in front of their parents.

APRIL

Wednesday 1—"O-o o o! you have a hole in your stocking!" "April Fool!"

Ruth Handelsman almost makes Margaret Redzinski hysterical with some jest concerning their locker.

Thursday 2—April showers bring May flowers and while the showers are preparing the way for the pretty little spring flowers, Vi and Edna eat cherry pie a la mode.

Friday 3—George Bolas is designer of ring to be worn by the members of the class of which he is president. Good for you, George!

Monday 6—Members of baseball team are brought into limelight. Boys, you're going to work hard and bring us that title, aren't you?

Wednesday 8—Clean-up plans are in full sway and Glenn Judson, chairman, forecasts tremendous results. If the efforts on the part of the student body mean anything, the results should be most tremendous.

Friday 10—Class of 1931 completes all the various committees for graduation.

Monday 13—Divorce cases seem to be the favorite type of program in sociology classes.

Tuesday 14—Muy Malo suggests that dictionaries be revised and give his definition of "blotter" which he says is "something to look for while the ink is drying."

Wednesday 15—Sociology classes shift for themselves because Mr. Bollinger has to look after ticket sales of Gala Performance. The demand for tickets is so great that the Performance has been scheduled for two nights instead of one.

Thursday 16—Gala Performance. George Szoke, Mae Yampolski, Lenore Mahoney, Leatrice Jaroline, Marie Steffens, Albert Rosanova, Martin LeVine, Edith Saxe, Eugene Szoke, Wilard Louts, Ruth Wadsworth and Wilford Prest render solos, and many dances are executed (? double meaning?) with great skill. Sixteen boys do the "Tell me Pretty Maiden" number, and you know, they actually make pretty girls.

Friday 17—Again Gala Performance giving everyone a chance to attend.

Monday 20—Just think, five thrilling games for only ten cents. Virginia Tenney, Lorry Marshall, Charlotte Ray, Mae Koester, and Jo Puntschart organize a band of a hundred of the fairer sex to sell baseball tags. Considering that these girls are all attractive, the male population should make good customers. On the other hand, since the team is an attractive one, the whole school should make prospective customers. Get back to your post.

Wednesday 22—Class of 1931½ social in boy's gym. No tickets to be sold at the door. You'd better hurry and get them from your division rep.

Thursday 23—College Day. Through the College Club's invitation, representatives from colleges all over the middle west and the east, come to give information concerning their college to the graduates.

Friday 24—Assembly for graduating seniors to vote on boy's scholarships. Ten boys eligible. One chosen for Northwestern scholarship and one for a scholarship at the University of Chicago.

MAY

Friday 1—Annual staff spends the day downtown preparing material for the book. When lunch is suggested, all heartily agree. But—find a place to eat where you can park while you are eating. It isn't being done, so the gang find themselves at Powers' having driven from Market Street on Washington Boulevard, to Crawford to eat. Isn't that the limit? And when Jane, Hattie, Ida, Margie, Edie, Joe, and Jimmie get back to Osgood's it is very near closing time.

Monday 4—If everybody is all settled down and all cleaned up, we can continue work after such a nice vacation.

Thursday 7—Seems as though we're getting all the showers scheduled for April. Water is necessary for flowers to grow, but some of us flowers look rather bedraggled after one of these slight (?) showers.

Tuesday 12—Open House. All work of entire semester on display and the school open to the inspection of our parents. Classes held in evening to show them "how it's done."

Friday 23—Mern and Essie might have their penthouse after all. If they keep up the good work they might even have a car or two in addition. Who would have thought of that?

Thursday 29—May is going (the month of May) and with it all the inclemencies (perfectly good word) of the weather. We hope so at any rate.

JUNE

Monday 1—June brings the roses. Weather excruciatingly beautiful. Nevertheless, work we must, so put your shoulder to the wheel and finish with a good average. Let's all go out with a bang but be sure that it is the right kind of a bang.

Friday 5—Ho-hum. Perhaps some contraption whereby George Harris would be made to stay wide awake would have a good effect on the rest of the class because he spreads so much sunshine when awake and alive.

Thursday 11—More sunshine and a general tendency to while away the happy hours and dream of things to be.

Friday 12—The Senior Prom holds sway and also holds swayers, the Midwest Athletic Club being the scene of revelry.

Wednesday 17—The end of the term is drawing near, and soon we will be cast out into the wide, wise world. Such is life in a big city.

Friday 19—Under-classmen struggle under threats of hard hearted teachers who insist on frightening them.

Thursday 25—Class Day. The time is drawing nigh when you will have to leave all these friends, so take advantage of the day and enjoy their company as much as possible.

Friday 26—Just a few short hours and we will be alumni. How proud our parents must be sitting out there in this huge auditorium, at least by the smiles on their faces, you would think they are proud. Oh dear, must we really leave this dear old school that we have grown to love so much? It must be true. Adios

Employment Committee

Donald Stabell

The Employment Committee is just completing a successful semester. Jobs have been difficult to secure, it is true, but the committee has worked diligently and earnestly to place our students in employment, and in many cases has succeeded.

The Committee is headed by Don Stabell, chairman, with Marion Meyers, secretary, assisted by Stanley Shifferd, Dorothy Nusperle, George Bolas, and Bernice Dodd.

Donald Stabell Twice every semester, 200 to 250 letters are sent out to large concerns asking for work. Although business conditions are far from desirable, the members have been fortunate in securing a goodly number of jobs.

The past committees have accomplished a great deal; the main desire of the present committee is to be as useful and capable as those of previous years.

Mr. Andrew Nichols is the adviser.

These three little Dutch children of varied sizes, presumably of the same family, signify the freshmen, sophomores, and juniors, of the huge family here at Austin High School.

Each member of the family has his favorite leaders and the juniors are privileged in that they may elect these to represent them.

In the following pages are to be found pictures of those places frequented by this family who while away many hours within its walls.

"You are about to witness a great experiment. The all inclusive micro-eye and ear is focused on those minute beings of the genus Austin. Class '31 1/2.

As we gazed into the eyepieces of the delicate machine, we saw what appeared to be a corridor of Austin High School. Suddenly a bell shrieked out of the silence and students poured out of classroom doors.

Several familiar faces appeared. They were Delmar DeWolf, LaVerne Major, Richard Lueders, Juanita Brinkman, Jimmy Dawson, and Glen Judson arguing noisily about capitalism versus labor. A loud rumble was heard and John Economos, Arnold Braverman, and William Cohen came in view.

By adjusting a tiny wheel at the side of the wonderful machine, we were able to change the scene to the interior of a classroom.

Ah! Here were some people we know well. Jessie Wade, Shirley Kretchmer and Evelyn Herrmann were discussing a "Y" supper in one corner of the room to the amusement of Leonard Tornheim and Norman Iverson.

As the picture changed again, we saw the interior of the civic room. Virginia Sauer was dancing and Elvira Teuffer and Kathryn Govanus thanked heaven for rescuing the Astral Club program. Two white faces at the door were found to belong to Mae Koester and Sylvia Lorenz, on the trail of a story. Through the door of Miss Deaton's office George Bolas and Norman Epstein were seen talking earnestly to Mabel Wingard.

Suddenly the little bell began to spin around and the result was a dizzy chaos of sight and sounds. The faces of Mary Jane Stangland, Edward Olson, Eileen Keena, Marion Lampert, Helen Conklin, Rosemary Irish, Myrtle Willis, Pearl Olson, and Giles Atwood were barely discernable.

"Hi there, Mr. Austin, whatcha doing," called Sonny World, dashing into the kitchen of the Austin Residence.

"Making stew," answered Mr. Austin, stirring something in a large caldron as if he were used to doing such things. "I do it every year; nothing to it!"

"My mother makes stew, but it's better than this," said Sonny.

In the fire Sonny World could see Vivian Klemme and Elroy Bronkman. "Fine fire here," he called to his friend, and then, to his surprise, he saw Mildred Feldman, Saralee Levy, Gordon Carlson, Audrey Paxton, Edwin Meyer, Merle McCune and Lannet Freeman all jumping and snapping under the huge kettle.

"Surely have plenty of good fuel there," mused Sonny.

With this, Mr. Austin dumped "Bob" Magene, Betty Gislason, and Marian Gale into the pot while "Bob" Anderson swam around and "Ray" Holtz hit the peas against the sides.

"Now for some nourishment: here are Henry Rago, Lorraine Nelson, Marjorie Grant and

The stew bubbled musically, and, looking into the kettle Sonny found George and Eugene Szoke playing the piano and a sax in the midst of the whole bunch.

It was finished and Mr. Austin garnished it with Norma Ahl, "Don" Stabell, Evelyn Otzko, Betty Scanlan, and Chester Pigulski.

"That certainly looks good, Mr. Austin; you're the best cook in the city."

So Mr. Austin gave the stew to Sonny World as his contribution for '32."

I sit before my television set all ready to dial the various rooms of Austin. First I'll dial the girls' gym. A picture comes before my eyes, Ruby Zimmerman strikes a usy batting ball being pitched to her by Gladys Dobritz while Beverly Larson runs around the gym, looks as if she's getting ready for another track meet. Now for a turn in the boys' gym, Paul MacDonald, Leonard Peifer, and some others are playing football. Paul's nearness to the ground surely does aid him in darting in and out among his opponents. Ah, John Moenck makes a nice basket.

Now I dial 339, what's this, an argument between David Hamm and Jack Sharp? Oh no, they're only staging a debate; whew, I thought they would come to blows any minute.

I think I'll take a peek down in the Little Theatre. There's Geraldine Greulich doing a dramatic piece with an interested audience, including Betty Welch, Marion Loomis, and Esther Kaitchuck looking on.

Now for the boys' club room, oh dear, what's happening to "Nick" Nedelcev? He's moaning low and writhing like a snake and now he bursts out a "Yea Austin!" Why, he's only practicing a new cheer.

The next view is in a nearly deserted room where Harold Kabus, Austin's "Paul Biese," is practicing a jazz tune on his clarinet.

This time I dial the Natatorium where a race is being staged with Elmer Neraquist and Christian Brinkman in the pool and Virginia Plummer, Fran Drummond, Betty Scanlan, and Katie Axelrod on the cheering side lines.

Upon dialing the south east corner of the first floor, I see Andy Strazabosco run to a class and Pearl Eisman dash out of the girl's locker room.

While reading in the garden one summer's day I wearied of the story. Tossing my book aside I was attracted by the glimmering reflections of the gazing bowl. Drawing nearer I looked into its enchanting chambers and lost myself in the visions it spread before me.

Shading my eyes and drawing closer I recognized the familiar faces of Sam Lambardi and Arnold Cliff chasing Tubby Rosa who had a football tucked under his arm; and saw Henry Gamson, neatly dressed in white, leaping into the air—with arms outstretched—leading the thousands in "Go You Austin."

I blinked, rubbed my eyes, and even went so far as to pinch myself, for there not far from the football players I saw Art Ehlschlager, Russell Anderson, Raymond Ragnini, William Long, James Netters, and Nalio Florio tearing pell-mell up the track in a neck to neck race. I identified two pretty spectators, Virginia Chase and Charlotte McKinney, who, judging from the pleased expressions on their faces, were much interested in the event.

Fascinated by the mysteries of this globe I shifted my position so that a scene came to my wondering eyes in which I could distinguish Robert Roth, Sam Ganganti, Charles Wiclemeyer, Raymond Balla, and Ray McNamara: all were staging, with apparent enthusiasm, an up and coming baseball game. On the sidelines near them I found Robert Durbin and John Peddie engaged as it would seem, in a heated conversation concerning the affairs of the Junior Hi-"Y."

Becoming more deeply interested in the fathomless powers of the shiny sphere I spied a pool in which I could make out the forms of Fred Allen and Robert Christians who were splashing merrily around in its cool water. Nearby on those lovely seats we have in our new swimming pool, sat Paul Honath, William Laise, Fred Engelthaler, and George Shoinneck, some of the members of our victorious skating team who had good reason to look rather gloomy because, you know, ice doesn't grow in summer.

I continued to examine the entrancing scenes before me and found in our new gym, not far from the swimming pool, Jack Nelson, who was vigorously engaging in some basketball game.

Suddenly my eyes were attracted to an adjoining incident, and centering my attention on it, it proved to be Tabor Nock running around with a butterfly net, pursuing some poor little defenseless insect, not far from where Ruth Brande was studiously pouring over a text book.

Inspired by Ruth's 4 average my day dreams vanished, and, awakening to the world as it really is, I seized my book with renewed determination and continued to read.

Brrrrrrrr. The good ship 1934 was approaching Austin High School. As it neared the East Building, Ruth Barklyrat, who was in the plane, reported to Florence Ockenga that William Bowers was down in the Science room signalling.

"Hey!" shouted William from the window, "I want to go along too! Meet you on the roof!" and with this he dashed out of the room.

Knocking around the corner he nearly knocked down Rose Arillo, the captain of the hall guards who asked the usual, "Where are you going?"

William didn't even stop to answer for down at the end of the hall he saw John Upchurch, Josephine Barnes, John Sullivan, and Arthur Meskh. They immediately joined him and in a few seconds were climbing up into the sightseeing plane where they were greeted by Violet Tansley, Alvera Schalk, and Marion Miller.

"All aboard!" shouted Pilot Homer Kelley, and the plane was off.

"Well, now, that we're started, I'll proceed with my job as guide," said Donald Koeppel picking up the megaphone in style "ala Vallee."

"On the left near the building you can see John Pepperdine. Whoops! There he goes! I guess that brief case was too much for those roller skates.

"Well, well, over a little further we have the pleasure of witnessing a ruler duel between Seymour Stone on the back of his trusty steed, Anthony Dzidz, and O. Johnson on his horse James Popuchis. Seymour, as you may have heard, reputed to be fast becoming Einstein's nearest rival, for besides his numerous other achievements, he astonished the mathematics department the other day by creating a new formula for extracting the square foot.

"Down at the east corner of the building are vice-president Jeanne Bentley, Dorothy Nienke, and David Bloom, crawling among the strawberry with a sieve. No, they're perfectly normal. They're merely hunting bugs for today's Honor Science meeting.

"Over at the east end of the field is Gilbert McGuff shooting baskets. Look out, Jeanne, you'll spoil that pretty shot.

"Oh, I knew something would spoil it. Those girl athletes Helen Wilson, Betty Snow, Persis Jane Lopez, and Margaret Wilson running into his path.

"Say, what time is it? What? Our time is almost up. Let's fly around the building just once more to see if we've missed anyone."

The plane of sightseers flew over West End Avenue and all the passengers leaned out of the windows paying no heed to the regulations.

"Yoo-hoo, Corrine Silverman!"

"See you next period, Bert Rinquist!"

"Hey Joe Corntassel, I mean Allen Baruck, wait for me!"

"Oh Seymour Rabinovitz and Edithmay Cooper, I'll be at the Freshman Dramatic Club today!"

But their shouts were in vain for the plane had already landed on the roof. There Jeanette Bessler, Edwina Johnson, and Charles Mertz were among those who welcomed them back to dear old terra firma.

Just as the spirit of the ancient Greeks was exemplified in their far-famed Olympics and individual personalities, the spirit of Austin comes forth in a blaze of sports undreamed of by even those unequalled athletes.

Because he has a full realization of the values of sports in modern life, it is for the Austinite in his play to act upon the inherited principles of sportmanship which alone have made possible the continuation of sports.

Sports Highlights

Here are the sports events which took the limelight in the season of 1930-'31 and helped to warm the hearts of all loyal Austin students.

The way in which our gridiron team functioned to overwhelm the Marshall eleven, our traditional West Section rivals by the score of 31-0.

The swimming team ran through their dual schedule to win the city dual meet championship the first time such a title has been recognized by the Board of Athletic Control.

The dedication of the new gym was pronounced a huge success by enthusiastic students, and it was due in no small part to the crushing defeat administered by our five to the strong Tuley cagers. Basketball also copped the bright lights when a basketball intramural tournament, the largest ever held in a Chicago High School, was staged under the auspices of Coach Murphy and his boys. A whirlwind finish was the windup with division 411 coming out a victor over division 457.

The track team achieved prominence when they placed second in the city meet and broke the record in the relay. In May the first annual intramural track carnival was run off with hundreds of boys and girls striving to win one of the medals offered.

Thrilling victories over Lane, city champions, and Oak Park won for baseball a place in the highlights.

Football 1930

Austin's doughty warriors of the gridiron, although possessed of an indomitable and fighting spirit, were unable to overcome the weight disadvantage and lack of seasoned veterans to achieve another West Section title. The football season of 1930 may be called successful since, although the number of victories was not so great, the development of everyone concerned was remarkable.

Coach Ring started out the season with but a small percentage of the number of experienced players with which he had previous seasons, and ended up with a high-powered machine that was hitting on all six. As a large number of the members of that team will be back in maroon and white colors next fall, it is probable that next year the car will reach its highest speed and again overcome Oak Park and win a championship.

Here are some of the "galloping ghosts of the gridiron" who merit special recognition for their efforts on the football battlefield. Zepp, left tackle, will be remembered for his keen faculty of diagnosing opponents' plays and repeatedly breaking them up. Haussman played the other tackle position. Koch, captain, and Kerrigan alternating with him ably fulfilled their position of center. Goodman and Wilson, two swift ends, did much to bring about victories for the Maroons, as also did Norton, Stone and McClintock who made their opponents think twice before bucking up against them. Bolas snared a good many passes and by his brilliant open field running, converted them into scores. Rose and Kmet, quarterbacks, Grattafiori and Cassidy, two hard kicking fullbacks, and Trakas and Keag, who played at halfback, complete the roster of Austin's 1930 football team. Meirken and Murphy were the two industrious managers.

Heavyweight Basketball

Coach Murphy finished his first season at Austin as cage mentor and turned over to the school the lightweight record of third place in the west section and the heavyweight standing of fifth place. This record does not convey with it, however, the many close contests in which Austin lost by a nose or the marvelous team work and excellent basketball which the boys of the hardwood demonstrated on so many occasions. "Maybe defeated but never conquered" was our basketball team.

Rosenfeld, elected captain of the heavies, but changed to the lights, led the maroon team in scoring. Captain Araman, Lynn, Herrick, Goodman, Wilson, Fabian and Gray were noteworthy players on the team. Kanning led the heavyweights in scoring. His outstanding teammates were Hendrickson, Gould, Atzel, Dolen, Magine and Cookman.

Senior Track

Track for 1931—and we think of the second place won by the seniors in the City Indoor Meet, in which the quarter mile relay team negotiated the distance to break a long standing record and nearly scored a slam in the fifty-yard dash. Coach Schmidt developed a high class well balanced team this year which will leave its mark on track history for years to come. The schedule included local dual and invitational meets, state and national contests in each of which Austin came through with flying colors.

Members of the relay were Kassay, Trakas, Krasno and Moore. The other thinclads who placed in the City Meet are Patty, in the half, and Pellar, in the shot put.

Baseball 1931

Coach Olson has again put on the baseball diamond a team which has proven that Austin is not a one sport school by any means, but one to be feared in any line of competition. The home team ran off with most of their pre-schedule games, and the rough spots evident were quickly smoothed over. The boys were quick to learn and soon found out that a bat was supposed to be used for something besides an air disturber or shoulder ornament.

Jimmy Cahill, captain, resumed the pitching duties which he had handled so efficiently the year before. Ray Dolen, Fred Kasch, Milt Rosenfeld, Val Eck, Bob Bryant and Daze Araman, are the members of last year's squad who returned to burn up the field with their flashy play. The team itself was well balanced and presented a high powered front which proved deadly to many of the schools attacking it. Oak Park and Lane, two very highly rated teams are only some of the many which fell under Austin's batting power, pitching strength, and smooth fielding.

Shereffs, Larkin and McNamara were the relief pitchers while Nelson, Williams and Schoneck took care of the receiving department. Bolas, Wilson, Bender, Roth, Goodman, Cunningham, Erickson, Mesi, McNamara, Sepsis, Mecklenberg, Kidd, Pastorello and Birchfield, are the players who added to the lineup of veterans and contributed largely to the Maroon and White victories. At the end of the year and baseball activities Austin has another year on the diamond of which she can be proud.

Tennis

With a squad composed of veterans who played on last year's team that was barely nosed out of a title by the strong Harrison team and augmented by a number of outstanding players among the lower classmen, the Austin racqueteers presented a strong front to their opponents this year. Vaughn, Anderson, Holtz, Capt. Cookman, Radke, Carlson, Freeman and Gordon formed the nucleus of the tennis team.

In connection with his gym classes, Mr. Steffens also coaches and instructs fencing classes from which candidates are chosen for the team to represent the school. This team enters the city wide meet which is held in the latter part of May. The foilmen who have shown outstanding ability are: Sodaro, Moore, Ziel, Sugarman, Supernaw and Koralik.

Gym

Under the coaching guidance of Coach Schmidt the gym team practiced steadily and developed into a decided threat for the city gym crown. Lindstrom, Alberts, Nosek, Brovski, Podden and Fredrickson are the gymnasts who figured in the meets held with other schools throughout the city.

Divots have been flying on the Columbus Park course where the Austin Golf Team went through the practice of trying to beat par that they might overcome all opposition in the city and state meets. A strong, well balanced aggregation was developed by Coach Ring and four qualifiers. Captain Sheppard, Cieslak, Ghiselli and Rogers competed in the state meet. An elimination tournament was utilized to pick the cream of Austin's linkmen.

G. A. A.

The officers of the 1930 1/2 semester were Eleanor Gleason, president; Josephine Puntschart, vice president; and Mae Koester, secretary-treasurer.

The officers of the 1931 semester are Virginia Tenney, president; Ruth Van Der Velde, vice president; and Carmela Petrone, secretary-treasurer.

The G. A. A., as the official girl's athletic association of the school, is one of the largest organizations for girls now in Austin. Altogether, from the East and West buildings, there is a total membership of over 400 girls.

The teachers who are now conducting classes and promoting interest in the G. A. A. include: Miss Hofmeister and Mrs. Hanson from the west building, and Miss Mazanec and Miss Angier from the east building.

This semester something entirely new was adopted by the G. A. A. in the form of an athletic board. It consists of the advisers, Miss Hofmeister, Miss Mazanec, Miss Angier, and Mrs. Hanson; the officers, Virginia Tenney, President, Ruth Van Der Velde, Vice-President, and Carmela Petrone, Secretary-Treasurer; the six athletic chairmen, Eleanor Gleason, Chairman of Tennis, Florence Pallies, Chairman of Volleyball, Sylvia Lorenz, Chairman of Baseball, Esther Onofrio, Chairman of Golf, Theresa Rizzo, Chairman of Hiking, and Ruth Schultz, Chairman of Swimming; and Ruth Lindquist, East Building representative. The board is proving very successful and shall be continued in future semesters.

Among the events sponsored by the G. A. A. this semester there have been: a tennis tournament, a golf tournament, a swimming meet during Open House night, and a track meet held in conjunction with the boys on the campus.

Fine arts—our mediums of expression! Music, the drama, art, the dance—loved by all who love life and its finer offerings. Of such a nature are the contributions lent to the world by the Latin peoples who have been made outstanding by their gifts.

All the beauty of each of the fine arts is here for us to enjoy if we will. In days to come, Austin will be famed for the great artists nurtured in one or more of its many proclivities.

The Little Theatre accomplishments for last semester were, mainly, the full-evening production, "The Royal Family," and a one-act play, "Revolt of the Dresses," a project directed by Little Theatre members for the Home Economics Department and presented at Harrison Technical High School. The most unique feature of the advertising plan for "The Royal Family" was a talkie sketch made by Little Theatre members and shown at local theatres throughout the semester bi-monthly meetings of the group were held; talent for the programs being furnished by the members.

During the second semester ten one-act plays were produced, some of which were directed by student directors under the guidance of Madeleine Glynn, faculty director. The following plays were produced outside of school: "The Travelers," at the Stanford Park Field House, "Where But In America," at the Jessie Spaulding School for Crippled Children, The Silkworm scene from Knoblauch's "My Lady's Dress" at Knox College, Galesburg, Illinois.

Miscellaneous programs were presented at Stanford Park Field House and at the Jessie Spaulding School for Crippled Children

The Little Theatre cooperated with the Civic Industrial Club's Clean-up committee in the production of a Minstrel Show which was presented five times

Members of the Little Theatre also participated in broad-casting a clean-up play over station WCHI, and WKBI, and WCFL. As in all previous semesters, bi-monthly meetings were held.

This semester an entirely new project was inaugurated; namely, the organization of a Freshman Dramatic Group

MAROON AND WHITE

Opera Club

The Opera Club under the direction of Miss Lloyd has had a very busy year. Its first public appearance was at an assembly in October. In November, there was another assembly at which time two selections were sung with John McComb as soloist. Early in December a "send-off" assembly was given for all the vocal organizations prior to the preliminary contest of A. I. C. Chicago High School Glee Clubs. Being one of the groups chosen to go into the final contest it won second place in its division on January 19. On May 21 and 22, it gave the three-act musical comedy, "Pickles," in the new auditorium. Thirty of the best voices were chosen to sing in the A. I. C. Chicago High School Festival at Orchestra Hall on May 27.

During the year, several socials were given. Near the close of the first semester, a dance was held in the gym. Due to the heavy work of the second semester, only two socials were possible: the first a "get-together" party in the gym, at the beginning of the semester, and a social to celebrate after the opera was over.

We bid you stop here awhile; enjoy the pages of fun that follow—the faces of many of your friends, the amusing stories, and the cartoons depicting, in parts, the theme of this book, that of the melting pot, symbolic of the many nations represented here at Austin.

This Russian performer, totally happy in his utter abandonment of worldly cares, keeps time to his throbbing music with seemingly endless vitality, and asks you to be merry with him. Whoops!

Just Imagine

By Lorry

The last bell rang, but the mutter of voices continued. The teacher was forced to rise and rap on the desk for order.

"Now students, how many times must I tell you what that bell means? One of the first things you must learn at school is manners, knowing when to keep quiet is a great asset."

"Blanche Walker, you're very efficient, will you kindly take the attendance, while the rest of the class copies down the home work for tomorrow.

"All right now, class, close your books and sit up straight for recitation. Alice Johnstone, will you give a resumé of 'Colomba'?"

The student rose and after some groping and stumbling around gave a half-hearted answer.

"Not very good," the teacher grunted, "but be that as it may. Before we continue, Helen Schoenbeck, please take off your rubbers; they are bad for the eyes. Fred Akers, will you rise and explain relativity?"

During the deepest and most intense part of the discussion, the outside door swung open causing the teacher to exclaim: "Well good morning Wilbur Bollinger, you'll have to get your breakfast a little earlier after this."

The usual thing is for a person to be saved by the bell, but this time Wilbur was saved by the telephone. The teacher rose with a sigh of exasperation to answer the ring. The usual message was again voiced.

"Eula Deaton, you're wanted down in the office right away. Before we resume the lesson I want to ask Helen Willis, was that your stocking cap left on my desk yesterday?"

"Now we will open our books and Kenneth Culbertson will translate the first paragraph on page twelve."

But the boy in the last seat in last the row said nothing.

"That will mean a 'zeero' for you, young man," declared the teacher with a smile of enjoyment which instantly changed to a look of anger as her eyes focused on a smiling schoolgirl in the back of the room. "Helen Safford, you're making entirely too much noise back there, and for goodness' sake, stop that giggling."

And so the period continued with only a few interruptions, including the informing of Bessie Soyer to be quiet, and the instructing of Cecile Dore to speak more loudly, and the remonstrating of Hazel Lloyd for her continuous humming.

Mabel Iser was again going through that nerve-racking performance of throwing chalk into the air and catching it in one hand. The teacher's patience was at an end but she held her tongue. The period would soon be over because Donald B. Miller was balanced on the edge of the seat waiting for the clock to jerk the last minute.

Then the bell rang.

Hello

BY BUNNII

Flaine was dazed. She had been imagining that she saw ghosts, and dolls, and kings, and now it seemed she was at the very door of romance.

"Hello," said a voice at her side.

She turned to behold a mythical looking pirate. "Hello," she murmured.

He smiled. "I'm a friend of yours. I used to sell shoestrings on the road to Mandalay. Would you like to enter the doors to dreamland with me?"

"Um hum," she said.

"Come along then," and he presented two orange pumpkin-shaped cards to the doorkeeper, who looked amazingly like Peter Pan.

"Hello," he said as they passed.

Flaine heard music, people dancing. The pirate asked to dance, and whirled her off in the crowd.

A dutch doll was talking to the Hunchback of Notre Dame. Flaine stared.

"Hello," they said. The pirate nodded.

King Louis XIV was making eyes at a little colored girl; Abraham Lincoln was exchanging pleasantries with the Queen of Egypt; an army captain was dancing with Aunt Mirandy from Pumpkin Centers.

"Hello," they all said. "Hello"
Elaine couldn't understand it
They peeked into the Staffroom. An old fashioned beauty in a sweeping pink hat was taking root beer from the hands of the resplendent vagabond. His torical creatures were seated all around

They had their pictures taken; they paraded around; they laughed, and sang, and danced some more. The music stopped and a man with an official look announced, "all out."

"May I take you home?" a ghost asked a bedraggled Cinderella. "The chariot awaits you."

Cinderella's chariot! Elaine rushed to see it, followed closely by the pirate

All piled into the chariot with Cinderella. The chariot seemed vaguely familiar to Elaine, in fact she dimly remembered having a puncture on Central Avenue in this same jalopy sometime in the faded past. Elaine laughed

A few moments later they stopped with an awful jolt

"You're home," he said

"Oh! It was lovely, thanks," said Elaine

Good bye, then

"Good-bye? No," she smiled. "Hello

Hello?"

"Yes, 'hello' for all the rest of the year until next

The Tooth Brush Mystery

By ROBERT BURNS

(Which is not a sequel to the "Tooth Paste Mystery.")

Such things are hard to believe. Truth, they say, is stranger than fiction. But strange things do happen in a school room. This incident, however, as the vulgarians would say, takes the cake. Whose cake they never state. Perhaps it's just as well to leave these things indefinite.)

One day, some time ago, loud sounds emanated from a room in the East Building.

"Who's got a tooth brush?" a loud voice demanded.

"I need one, too," a girlish soprano chimed in. "Hurry up somebody."

"What's that?" stammered a startled soph, passing by outside.

"Don't know," grinned a jolly junior in reply. "but it sounds as if a bunch of freshies have cut some new teeth and want to give them a clean start in life."

Inside the tumult still raged but in a quieter vein.

"I wonder if some teacher would have a tooth brush?" queried a deep bass voice. "You know, maybe they use one after their midday meal."

"I don't think so," objected another. "the radio tells us 'clean your teeth twice a day; see your dentist twice a year.' That means only morning and night."

"Methinks," a third voice interposed, "that I'll try anyway. I'm going to hie myself to the new building and see what I can find."

His mind made up, the self-appointed messenger wrote out a pass which was duly signed by the teacher, and duly preserved after usage for some other day when time and hall guards would press. The door closed softly behind him with only a faint click. (An Austinite is always courteous).

The messenger waved the pass before the thoughtful countenance of the young hall guard, who promptly seized it and read it through slowly and carefully before handing it back with a lingo-sling, "all right." On the first floor the painful process was repeated by the zealous guard stationed there.

At last! Freedom! Down the stairway, out the door, and into the bracing Austin air went the anxious boy. Clap, clap, clap, sounded his hoofs (shoes to you) on the sidewalk pavement. Jingle, jingle, jingle, clanged the coins (pennies) in his pockets. Puff, puff, puff, panted the laboring boy as he rushed up the steps into the West Building.

Creeping stealthily up the first flight of steps to evade the sharp eared guard, he broke into a mad dash up the second and third flights, where he pulled up short to walk calmly past the third floor guard. Oh, no dear reader! He broke no rules. He had produced the pass, but was waved on.

Down the hall—310, 308, 306 where was the confounded room? Ah! there it was. He entered.

"Have you a tooth brush, please?" he asked the startled teacher.

"A what?" exclaimed the latter. "Oh, dear, no! Not a one."

She turned to her class. "Has anyone a tooth brush they would lend?"

The class was unanimously negative. They gaped (open mouthed, of course) at the rapidly dwindling messenger. "Squirrel toed" was their undertoned remark.

The shaken boy made a hasty exit. He hadn't the courage to try any more teachers and he turned to retrace his steps.

Back in the East Building again, the efficient hall guard recalled his usage and visa and voiced no protest. On the second floor, however, the guard was firm, if polite.

"Got an admit?"

The messenger promptly produced the evidence, which was seized even more promptly. Minutes passed. Still the guard read and ruminated.

"Whaddaya want me to do, frame it for you?" snarled the waiting lad goaded by impatience. (Like being goaded by a bull, they both get under your skin).

"Why, that's right," trilled the guard a few moments later, a gleam of intelligence illuminating her features. "You were by here a short time ago weren't you? I didn't know you."

Fearing lest he do bodily harm, the messenger hastened into the room and came to a halt with a click of his heels that would have wreathed Captain Jenk's face in smiles.

"No tooth brushes," he announced with hanging head.

Dead silence reigned. If any reader who doubts this last statement will send a self addressed, stamped, envelope to the editors, he or she will receive positive proof. Sound recordings were taken on the spot. Hence we are in a position to KNOW!

More silence. A pin dropped. Somebody picked it up. No one moved.

"Well," the teacher finally said. "I don't know what we can do. I've looked all through the cupboards and can't find any." She moved to the front of the room.

"Why look here," she exclaimed. "Did you see this? Here's one soaking here."

Covetous hands clutched the air.

"Mine!" arose a grand chorus.

The teacher settled the hue by handing the brush to the foremost hand.

Deep sighs. The room again returned to its natural state—a universal hubbub.

Through the din came the "spat, spat," of tiny drops shaken from an agitated tooth brush. After a time they ceased.

Modern Art

BY BUNNIE

In one great bound.

His fame he found.

His name was ever lauded.

He called his painting

"Maiden Fainting"

And how the crowd applauded.

"I see no maid."

A critic said

The crowd gasped in dismay.

The artist, sighing,

Was heard replying,

"She's fainted quite away."

MAROON AND WHITE

The Prodigal Son

By Jimmy

Young Ben Hathaway left his happy home in the wee small hours of one summer's afternoon. He had a destination, did this lad, and he also had $4.53, a Canadian dime and a bent penny. He was bound on a serious venture. He would set the world on fire or know the reason why.

So he took the offer of a farmer, beaught the linocam and proceeded home where he was to enjoy a morning in drinking pink tea and nibbling wafers. But this boy was more than a locksmith. He was captain of the pom-pom pullaway team at college and played a fast game of marbles. Ushering at checker games was his long suit, and as an umpire at tattletale winks matches he had no peer.

Therefore, when the dentist said "Here, take your dog," he said, "Certainly, I will take this animal home and feed him N. B. C.'s superlative dog cookies, too." So he took the bird cage and went home.

(Moral: Never feed a hot penny to a monkey.)

Ode to an Onion

O shunned and slighted tender shoot—
(Which are you: vegetable or fruit?)
I turn my eyes from daffodils
And green vines on the window-sills,
To tell you that you cop the cake
When smothering a piece of steak.
With liver also you're O. K.
Every night but Saturday.
For that's the night when I step out
With her to galavant about:
But there are noses there to smell you.
And oh, your best friend wouldn't tell you!

"Well," sighed the fortunate possessor, "this spatter work might make good drawing, but it's plenty hard work."

Crimly he set again to the task of scraping a spatula across the ink-clogged bristles of the tooth brush, causing tiny drops to fall on the decorative annual illustration.

Queer people, these artists! o o o
